FELL OFF

MOVING TRAIN.

By Associated Press to the Journal.

OSGEOO CITY, Sept. 28.—Claude Williams, a young man formerly in the employ of the Crown paper mills, aged about 25, was found dead under the railroad bridge at New Era Wednesday morning, having evidently fallen from the blind baggage of the overland train.

On Friday he secured transportation from an employment agent in Portland, with the intention of working on the Mohawk branch line of the Southern Pacific. As the ticket was good only for Monday, he remarked before boarding the train last night that he would work his way to Eugene. His neck was broken and face badly disfigured by the fall.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death by falling from a moving train. The deceased came from North Carolina, and has a brother here. In his pocket was found an old life insurance policy for $1500, in favor of his mother.

They Will Not Open in Salem Until October 9th.

The Highland School Probably Will be Continued as Before.

The board of directors of Salem district held a special meeting last evening, and the opening of the city schools was postponed for a week, until Oct. 9th.

Two bills were ordered paid by warrant as follows: R. E. Moore, printing school supplies, $32.39; Jones & Moore, painting and kalsomining the inside of Little Central school building, $50.

Beef Famine Prophesied.

J. McCarty, a Hillsboro cattle dealer, who was in Portland yesterday, looks for great scarcity of beef in the northwest this winter, as farmers and stockmen have sold their cattle down so low that very little beef has been left. The demand for stock cattle to replenish the ranges of Montana, has been so great that Oregon cattlemen have left their own ranges bare of stock in many instances. The high price paid for veal, 8 cents a pound, has also tempted farmers to dispose of their heifer calves. A two-months-old calf will dress 100 pounds and $8 is considered a big price, and so farmers have sold calves as well as yearlings and 3-year-old heifers, without considering the scarcity to result in the years to come. "Oregon has to feed not only Portland," he said, "but the cities on Puget sound and the great mining region recently developed in Alaska. I think nothing can prevent a beef famine in the northwest this winter."—Oregonian.

Important Land Case.

An important land-contest case has just been tried before the United States land office at Oregon City, by Receiver William Galloway and Register C. B. Moore. The state is contestant against one Sabage, and is endeavoring to protect title to 40 acres of valuable land lying next to the corporate limits of Salem, which was sold a number ago to one Jory. E. F. Cowing, attorney for contestee, contends that the records don't show that the land was properly selected. It seems the interior department allowed Sabage to file a homestead entry on the land, after it was already supposed to have been sold to Jory. Now the state intervenes in behalf of Jory. General (Bell) was the state's legal representative.

Vaccination at the Pen.

Superintendent Lee of the state penitentiary informs THE JOURNAL that, as soon as the small pox seemed liable to make a raid on Salem, all of the prisoners were vaccinated except those who had been efficiently vaccinated before. The number so treated was 208, and they have all been given well.
